SEB Montrusco Bolton Global Equity Fund

Monthly report as of September 30, 2026

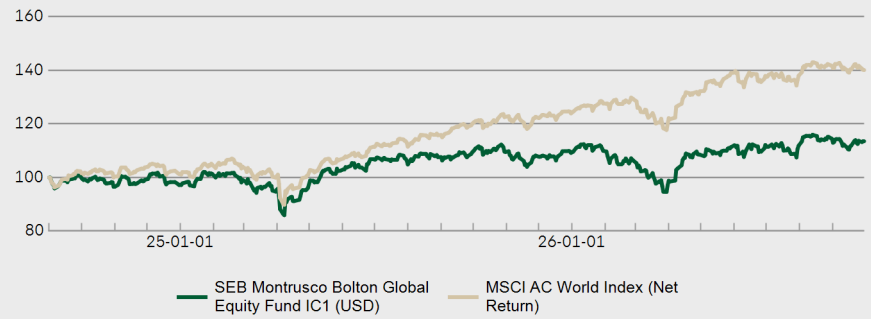

Past performance is not indicative of future results. The value of investments and income derived from investments may rise as well as fall. Future returns are not guaranteed, and a loss of principal may occur. Key Information Documents and prospectuses are available at www.sebgroup.lu

Global equities faced a challenging environment in September 2026 as rising bond yields and renewed inflation concerns weighed on markets. Higher energy prices, linked to continued disruption in the Middle East, added to uncertainty around the outlook for interest rates. Technology and artificial intelligence (AI)-related companies remained comparatively resilient, supported by continued investment in AI infrastructure, while broader equity markets were more sensitive to higher yields. In Europe, fiscal concerns and energy costs contributed to a more cautious market tone. Geopolitical tensions and trade policy remained additional sources of market price fluctuations.

The fund's relative attribution was positive in September, led by information technology and communication services. Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company and Lam Research were among the strongest contributors, supported by strong demand for advanced chips and semiconductor equipment. Meta Platforms also contributed, following improved sentiment after its settlement with state attorneys general and the launch of its Muse AI agent. FinecoBank detracted despite strong client inflows. Chipotle Mexican Grill weighed on results amid concerns about restaurant traffic and consumer demand, while not owning shares in Apple and Advanced Micro Devices also hurt relative performance as their shares rose.

AI remains an important consideration given its influence on global equity markets and the fund's benchmark. Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company and SK Hynix provide exposure to AI infrastructure demand, but each is assessed on its own merits. As AI spending grows, we are monitoring whether it translates into durable revenue growth and attractive returns on capital. Higher energy prices, persistent inflation and rising bond yields could put pressure on equity valuations, while geopolitical tensions remain a risk to supply chains and investor sentiment. In this environment, we remain focused on businesses with durable competitive advantages, strong balance sheets and visible earnings growth, while maintaining valuation discipline.
